W. A. HARRIMAN IS SENT TO EAST TO RECEIVE SUPPLIES

Is Dispatched by President To Middle East Theatre of War

SPEED-UP IS DEMANDED

Mission is in Connection With Receipt of American Equipment

WASHINGTON, June 12—(INS)—President Roosevelt today dispatched W. Averell Harriman to the Middle East war theatre to receive vital supplies for the British as administration Senators demanded a general speed-up in the aid to Britain program.

A White House announcement tersely said that Harriman's mission is in connection with arrangements for the receipt of American equipment being shipped there from the United States.

It is presumed, however, that the supplies must be of vital importance to the British drive into Syria and defense of the Mediterranean in order to draw Harriman away from his London post.

"Odd Job Service" Will Aid Scout Uniform Fund

HULMEVILLE, June 12—The troop committee of Hulmeville Boy Scout Troop No. 22, met at the home of the Rev. Louis E. Fifer, 3rd, on Tuesday, with the following members present: Chairman, the Rev. W. E. And "Odd Job Employment Service" was instituted under the supervision of Messrs. Sutton and Gledhill. Any one who has an odd job which might be done by a Scout may call Mr. Sutton. The co-operation of the public is asked in advertising and using this service.

Congratulated Upon His Ability As A Salesman

A Bristol man, Damon A. Jobson, received word today that he was one of the highest-ranking salesmen in the United States in a nation-wide Spring selling contest just concluded by De Soto-Plymouth dealers and the De Soto division of Chrysler Corporation.

He was informed of his high standing in a congratulatory message signed by L. G. Peed, of Detroit, De Soto's vice-president.

"You have played a very real role in helping De Soto to new, all-time sales records this Spring, not only in your own region, but across the entire United States," wired Peed. "Hence, the sincerest congratulations of the whole organization."

The contest, which extended over a nine-week period, was the largest and most successful in De Soto history, with 12,000 salesmen participating, according to De Soto officials. Selling men who qualified had their choice of nearly 1,000 merchandise prizes, ranging from fountain pens and cameras to valuable silverware and period furniture.

CONDEMN METHODS OF TRANSPORTATION

Trenton Authorities Say Men, Women and Children Are Herded Like Cattle

TO MORRISVILLE FARMS

TRENTON, N. J., June 12—Methods of transporting Trentonians to work on truck farms near Morrisville has become the source of much contention. The conditions described as "uncouth" and "unsanitary" were discussed at a meeting of the Trenton Local Assistance Board.

Peter W. Radice, a member of the relief supervisory body, told his colleagues at their June session that he personally investigated frequent charges made concerning conditions involved in the transportation of Trenton relief clients to farms across the river.

"As late as last Saturday night at 11:30 o'clock," Radice declared, "I saw a truck carrying men, women and children down Warren street. The people were herded in the vehicle like cattle. It was a disgrace; the condition was uncouth and, to say the least, unsanitary."

Radice's report led to a motion that Miss Helen R. McCormack, city welfare supervisor, notify the farming companies to remedy the situation.

Miss McCormack recalled that the management of two farms in the Morrisville area had told her on previous occasions that the situation was one for the Trenton police to handle, blaming the overcrowded conditions on the people themselves. However, Radice countered with the observation that the farming firms could quickly remedy the condition by sending over sufficient trucks.

Beautiful Dances in Gay Costumes Thrill Audience

The colorful and beautiful dances presented at the annual recital of pupils of Miss Winifred Tracy, in Mutual Aid Hall, last evening, kept a capacity audience thrilled and entertained for more than two hours, as tiny steppers and older dancers kept time to gay music.

With the opening scene being that of a New Orleans Mardi Gras, the Mardi Gras parade of the tiny tots was a popular feature.

The "Southern Belles" surprised the audience. Appearing in a beautiful dance, gowning in ruffles and wearing poke-bonnets, they suddenly turned about, revealing "Colored Mammies," by use of black masks, with costumes of red dresses, shawls, and red bandanas.

The Court Scene in which the Crown Jewels appeared, was especially brilliant, with a background of purple and gold. In this number Miss Tracy was the court ballerina, dancing intricate steps as cellophane ropes in the hands of the court ladies formed a variety of figures.

There was also in the group of presentations, a jockey number, in which the participants tap-danced over hurdles.

New fixtures, new display cases and counters, all arranged with an eye to better serving customers, have been installed. The floor space is now more than three times larger than formerly occupied by the market.

An advertisement announcing the completion of this expansion program, and listing numerous food specials, appears on another page of today's Courier.

Allied Forces 10 Miles From Damascus

London, June 12—Authoritative British quarters declared today that Allied forces in Syria are still ten miles south of Damascus and between six and seven miles south of Sidon on the Lebanese coast.

These circles said it was felt the Vichy government is deliberately exaggerating French losses in the Syrian hostilities to "embitter the French against the British."

At Vichy an official spokesman stated the situation in Syria remained unchanged today except along the coastal sector, where French losses were heavy. The spokesman denied reports that Sidon had fallen to the invaders.

Heavy fighting progressed around Kiswe, about 10 miles south of Damascus, while two columns drove against Beirut on the coast.

One of the latter has penetrated as far as Sidon on the coast while the other, further inland near the Leontes River, is now in the vicinity of Hasbaya.

Clouds of smoke blotted Sidon from view as fighting raged in that sector.

To Strive for Peaceful Occupation of Damascus

Cairo, June 12—British military leaders today decided to strive for peaceful occupation of Damascus.

British in Cairo said the advance on Damascus is continuing without haste, as the goal is occupation without bloodshed. No confirmation has been received that Hasbaya, southwest of Damascus, has been taken.

May Continue Session All Summer

By Raymond Wilcox

Harrisburg, June 12—The General Assembly met today with the threat of an all-summer session hanging over it in the wake of a "no compromise" speech delivered by Gov. Arthur H. James before a joint session of the House and Senate.

"I propose to fight out the case of a balanced budget . . . if it takes all summer," said the Governor in an angry impassioned attack upon the Democratic leadership of the House. "I wish to serve notice . . . that there will be no surrender."

BUCKINGHAM WOMAN TRIES TO TAKE LIFE

Socially-Prominent Mrs. John Tyler Claiborne, Jr., Suffers Bullet Wound

IN A SERIOUS CONDITION

BUCKINGHAM, June 12—Reported in a very serious condition, Mrs. John Tyler Claiborne, Jr., socially prominent resident of New York and Buckingham, remains in Abington Hospital, following an alleged attempt to take her life.

Mrs. Claiborne, Jr., who is said to have been in ill health for some time, suffered from a self-inflicted shot-gun wound in the chest. An operation was performed Monday night, following the incident.

The woman, who spent last winter in a sanitarium in Connecticut, and who had been recuperating at the farm here this Spring, is said to have attempted to take her life, while in the bedroom of her home on the family's 110-acre farm.

Her condition had improved considerably, members of her family said, and although she had showed signs of despondency recently she appeared normal at three p. m., Monday, when she answered a telephone call intended for her husband, who was away. A short time later a maid working in the kitchen heard a gun shot, and rushed to the bedroom where she found Mrs. Claiborne lying across a bed and a 12-gauge shot-gun on another bed nearby.

The maid called a neighborhood grocer, who summoned Dr. Bradford Green. The physician summoned an ambulance.

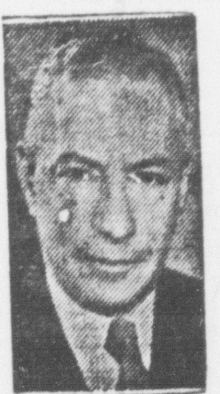

Mrs. Claiborne is the former Ann Paxson, daughter of the late Colonel and Mrs. Henry Douglas Paxson, of Buckingham. Claiborne, listed in the New York social register, is the son of Mr. and Mrs. John Tyler Claiborne, of Roanoke. Married in March, 1929, the couple have four children: Ann, 10; John, 9; Eliza, 7, and William, 5. They reside at 1261 Madison avenue, New York City, but spend much of their time at the Buckingham estate.

THE GREAT GAME OF POLITICS

By FRANK R. KENT
(Distributed by McNaught Syndicate, Inc.)

On Keeping Them In Washington, June 11.

IT has become axiomatic in this Administration that Mr. Roosevelt never fires anyone. In the eight years of his incumbency there naturally have been some changes in personnel. One or two of his aides have died. But in almost every case when they have resigned it has been a voluntary resignation. No one can recall an instance where the resignation was forced by the President.

CONSEQUENCES of this policy are interesting. For one thing it has given the jobholders a sense of permanency which they lacked in previous Administrations. An overwhelming proportion of the Roosevelt aides have gone into the third term with him. Naturally, they feel entrenched, settled down, secure. From their standpoint, the reluctance of the President to ask anybody to retire is fine. And, from the standpoint of the country, there is also an argument in its favor—to wit, that long tenure in office of those who handle the Government affairs enables them to handle them better than if new men, coming in every year or so, had to familiarize themselves with the work, taking over just as their predecessors were acquiring skill.

Bringing a North Carolina touch to Doylestown, Raymond Wodock, one of the best known sportsmen in the county, is raising peanuts and popcorn in his garden at his home on North Clinton street, at Doylestown.

Wodock, who was given peanuts and popcorn to plant when he was visiting Nick Bradley, former well-known County Seat athlete, who is now living on an Indian reservation at Cherokee, North Carolina, says the peanut vines are about two inches high and the popcorn is also an inch or two out of the ground.

The County Seat gardener, who said he remembers seeing peanuts grow 40 years ago, but didn't know how to plant them, took a chance and planted them without the shells although all his friends insisted they should have been planted with the shells.

"In North Carolina every farmer has his own corn and peanuts," said Mr. Wodock, who is one of the best known baseball and football mentors in this section.

With the end of the school term at Morrisville on June 20th, George Itterly, of 31 East Hendrickson avenue, will round out 25 years of teaching grammar school in Pennsylvania.

Itterly graduated from East Stroudsburg Normal School and has taken post graduate work at Rutgers University, the University of Pennsylvania and Lafayette College. He began teaching in Plainfield Township, Pa., rural schools, then went to West Easton Borough schools, where he was principal. Later he went to Tullytown, where he was principal, and then to Morrisville, where he has taught arithmetic and health for the past five years.

Active in school work, he assists the supervising principal's office after school hours. Itterly, who resides in Morrisville with his wife, has two children, Mrs. Lambert Broad, of Free-land, Pa., and Mrs. Esther Mountney, of Baltimore, both of whom were teachers before marriage.

In his 25 years of teaching, Itterly has witnessed many improvements in the school system. When he started teaching, the pay was $35 a month and several students, especially in the farming districts, could only attend five months of the year. His favorite subject is arithmetic, with geography a second choice.

THREE EVENTS HELD AT BOY SCOUT CAMP

Annual Camporee Attended By About 300 Scouts and Leaders

CAMPED IN PUP TENTS

The last week-end was one of the most active out-of-door week-ends in the history of the Bucks County Council Boy Scouts of America. Three events were held at Camp Ockanickon, starting on Friday, June 6th, with the annual camporee which was attended by 300 scouts and leaders from 26 troops in the Council area. The Scouts camped overnight in pup tents and were rated in general camping ability.

The camporee wound up on Saturday night with a council court of honor with Hon. Hiram H. Keller presiding. The invocation was given by Rev. A. B. Davidson of Doylestown and the address of welcome by the Hon. Calvin S. Boyer. Eleven Five Year veteran awards were given by Council Commissioner William Burgess, Jr., of Morrisville, and two ten year veterans. These badges are for length of service. Second class recognition was given by Board Member Harry L. Harding of Southampton to 41 scouts and 14 first class awards were presented by Council Commodore F. P. Kemmerer, Sellersville.

One hundred and seventeen merit badges were presented to 32 scouts by Merit Badge Commissioner Jesse Wendkos of Andalusia, and the first Emergency Service Corps in the county was installed by John Burtonwood, Field Commissioner of Bristol. All members of this Corps belong to the New Hope Scout Troop. Special Ten Year awards by Scout Executive Robert B. Goeller were presented to Troop No. 4 of Quakertown, Churchville, Richlandtown Cub Pack and Andalusia. Following these awards the Pledge of Allegiance was led by a group of Scouts from the Sell-Perk Ship "Ranger." Following this, ten Star awards were made by District Commissioner Lewis Fetherolf of Milford and the Life scout award to three scouts by Council President Walter W. Pitzenka, Bristol. The final award was that of the coveted Eagle badge to Scouts James L. Bolton, Albert DeVoe, Linton Martin and Harry Riebel of Troop No. 2 of Bristol, which was done with an impressive Indian ceremony. Approximately 600 attended the court of honor.

Sunday afternoon and early evening was devoted to a cub family picnic in which 360 cubs and their parents attended. Stunts were put on by the various Cub Packs, games were played and father and son ball games held. Following a box luncheon a brief campfire was built. The Cub program is the 9, 10 and 11 year old program of the Boy Scouts of America.

Bucks Realtors Plan A "Know Your County" Tour

DOYLESTOWN, June 12—The board of directors of the Bucks County Real Estate Board held a session prior to the regularly scheduled session of the main body of members last evening. The directors gathered in the Happ Real Estate office, here, at five o'clock, with Charles Heyer, Bustleton, presiding.

At 6.30 the county board membership was served dinner at the Fountain House, with covers placed for 22. Among the reports of various committees was one by Paul Townsend, Langhorne, who referred to some legislation that realtors are endeavoring to have passed at Harrisburg, dealing mainly with deficiency judgments, taxation, and professional licensing.

In lieu of a picnic, usually held in July, the members are planning a "Know Your County" tour. A bus, accommodating 41, will leave Somerton Springs, taking the members to Pennsbury, Bowman's Hill, and other points of interest. Returning to the starting point, supper will be served and entertainment provided.

If this tour, covering Lower Bucks County proves a success, the membership hopes later to tour Upper Bucks County.

FORGOTTEN FILMS TRAP FARM HAND, A HIT-RUN DRIVER

Car He Was Operating Killed Philadelphia Produce Dealer

ADMITS THE ACCIDENT

Joseph Neppes, 22, Apprehended in Stolen Car at Lumberville

Leaving a roll of undeveloped film in a car which he abandoned, Joseph Neppes, 22, "trapped" himself following a hit-run automobile accident in Philadelphia.

The accident investigation squad of the police department of that city had the negatives developed, taking them to a Doylestown camera shop whose address appeared on the envelope. After films were developed, the officers traced Neppes to a farm near Lumberville. When Neppes drove up, Patrolmen John Schilling and Patrick Sweeney, Philadelphia, awaited him. The car operated by Neppes when apprehended, according to the officers, had been stolen a few hours earlier from Benjamin Cohen, North Broad street, Philadelphia.

The police said Neppes confessed and also admitted serving a 15-month jail term for burglary in Halifax county, Va.

Neppes was quoted as saying that his second-hand car ran out of oil about five a. m. yesterday near 40th st. and Baltimore avenue, Philadelphia. He says he stole $5 worth of oil from a corner gasoline station and was speeding away when his car hurtled into the automobile of Morris Rothstein at 39th and Spruce streets, Philadelphia.

Rothstein, 50, of Osage avenue, Philadelphia, on his way to Dock street market to buy produce for his store, was killed.

Exhausted Carrier Pigeon Being Cared For Here

A pigeon which flew into the garage of Percy G. Ford, Farragut avenue, on Monday, weak from need of food, and exhausted, is being well cared for until it is claimed.

The pigeon, which bore a round black band on its right leg, had a numbered band on the left leg, reading "AU-40-L-1130."

When the carrier pigeon flew into the garage, states Mr. Ford, it was so weakened that it was readily picked up. The police were notified, and Mr. Ford while awaiting word of the owner, is feeding it well. He plans, if it is not claimed, to release it when it becomes sufficiently strong, in the hope that it will return to its home loft.

WARNS OF ACCIDENTS

In its annual warning to motorists respecting their responsibilities for the safety of children during the coming school vacation season the Keystone Automobile Club also emphasized parental responsibility, pointing out that mothers and fathers should exercise more than usual vigilance in the months their children are released from school discipline and the daily lessons in safety practices.

Edward P. Curran, Safety Director of the Club, said chances for accident this year are increased because there are more cars on the road. Unless motorists are extremely cautious the child accident toll will be heavy during the vacation period, he said. "We most urgently ask all drivers to refrain from 'taking chances' where children are concerned," he added.

"It should be recognized by motorists and parents that the hazard to children is greater in the summer months when they are free from the restraints and safety lessons in the classrooms," the safety director continued. "Therefore, the duty devolves upon drivers to be doubly careful and upon parents to apply the cautionary measures essential to safety."

In an appeal to school children, Mr. Curran calls upon pupils to keep better than during vacation the Safety Squad slogan: "Always alert; never hurt."

"To protect your lives and prevent serious personal injuries," he said, "it will be necessary for you to practice the safety rules you have learned in school during the year. This does not mean you must give up your opportunities to play and enjoy yourselves. It does mean that obedience to the safety rules which you are playing is necessary for your protection."

GASOLINE SHORTAGE

There is a growing gasoline shortage in the East. Curtailed transportation facilities brought about by transfer of 50 oil tankers to Britain is the cause. The situation is so desperate that Oil Czar Ickes warns that there may be a ban on driving of automobiles for pleasure within a month.

Just how such a ban would be enforced, or what would be classed as driving for pleasure, are details that have not been revealed. But if such an edict were issued and observed, the effect on the habits of the people as well as on business would be far-reaching.

Perhaps hardest hit would be the summer resort business in New England and other Eastern states, and all along the Atlantic coast. Other means of travel could not, overnight, replace the automobile as the average man's means of getting from here to there. Deprived of the use of his car, he would probably stay at home.

Congress authorizing a large appropriation for an "office of government reports" would seem to be the signal for bigger and better waste-baskets.

The French are a mercurial people, but switching from centuries of hating Germans to admiration overnight seems like overdoing it.

After the speeches by Senator Pepper of Florida, the President's seemed in the nature of an anticlimax.

mal agencies of the Government is admittedly pretty bad; but it is much more serious when it is extended to the defense organization.

IT is his unwillingness to terminate the service of anyone whom he has selected that now blocks the terribly needed reorganization of the defense machinery. Some who have talked with him recently assert that the President knows that the machinery is in bad shape and bogging down. He knows now that he cannot run it himself and that the mistake was in not delegating the managerial job to one man at the beginning. But now he is unable to figure a way of getting back to sound principles without dismantling the whole business and setting it up all over again.

AND that he cannot bring himself to do—for two reasons. One is that it would be open acknowledgment that his critics were right and that he was wrong. Although in the past eight years that has been demonstrated a good many times about a good many things, it has never been admitted by Mr. Roosevelt. The other is that it would involve separating from the posts he has given them a considerable number of men whom he likes but who are running around in circles rather than marching forward.

NOT long ago, Mr. Roosevelt did send for an extremely well-known and highly-qualified businessman, with whom he went over the whole situation leaving the businessman under the impression that he wanted him to take over the whole job and boss it as Mr. B. M. Barnuch bossed the War Industries Board twenty-four years ago. Not anxious for the responsibility but willing to assume it, this man told the President that he was at his service. He left the White House with the understanding that some sort of announcement would be made and he would be sent for.

HE had himself in readiness for the call, but none came. That was three weeks ago and he has heard nothing whatever from the White House since. Now he has dismissed the whole thing from his mind and is concentrating on his old job. Still, he concedes, it was a strange experience. All that can be deduced from it is that the President feels that some sort of directing head is becoming more necessary and is trying to find a face-saving way of naming one. The expectation is that if and when the President makes his selection he will superimpose either the new man or a new commission on the present OPM and OEM. This will make it unnecessary for him to fire anyone. It will also be unnecessary for him to seem to discard his present instrumentalities. Of course, he may do nothing at all.

Today's Quiet Moment

(By the Rev. James R. Galley, Pastor, Bristol Presbyterian Church)

We thank Thee, O God, that Thou art always with Thine own; that it is never necessary for us to feel lonely, depressed, or defeated. We rejoice in the fact that in the midst of greatest adversity we can feel most strongly Thy nearness. May we always recognize Thy presence; never allowing hardship to blind us, nor pain to leaden us nor strife to harden us. May we lean on Thee in all things, and find in Thee that strength and that peace which passeth human understanding. Through Jesus Christ our Lord. Amen.

BRISTOL'S GREATEST ATHLETIC SUCCESS STORY IS THAT OF ROMAN PIEO, WHO SCORNEO OBSTACLES AND WORKED WAY FROM CRUTCHES TO COLLEGE COACH

Never Ceased Training Program in Bristol High Gym During Years When He Moulded Body for National Championships and Future Sports Career

By Jack Gill

Some athletes are gifted with all of the natural elements that earth could endow them with. At the top of the heap from the start, they stay that way and emblazon their name across the sports horizon.

Others lack the needed requirements and strive and sweat and swear through years of trial and tribulation. Some reach their ultimate objective. Others lack the intestinal fortitude and grit and lightly throw their peanut shells into the ring.

The greatest Bristol sports story has now been told. By now every follower of athletics realizes that the town has produced a college coach. For Roman "Fli" Pieo was appointed head gymnastic coach at Maryland University. He will assume his duties next year after graduation from Penn State, officially carded for this June.

The town has had many great scholastic athletes. Once noted as the blistering scourge in all suburban Philadelphia, its old-time football machines were havoc wreckers. Men big in build and keen in athletic knowledge have traversed local greenwards. All, in most instances, were typically built athletes with heavy physical qualities.

But let's go back a few years. Fall had blossomed its way in and one warm Indian Summer day found a kid hobbling up to the school coach. The boy himself was new to the Harriman School and the coach wasn't exactly a solid fixture. That was the meeting of Pieo and "Gloomy" Bill Dougherty. Scratch that in your notebook as an episode of great importance.

The new coach and the new boy stuck together. As a rule, most crippled youth hang around the athletes and manage the teams. Not able to play in physique, their spirit and will makes up for their slight deficiency. Things sailed along rather smoothly. The new coach, fresh out of Springfield College, interested the boy who once suffered from infantile paralysis in swimming. This is the first step in revitalizing once deadened limbs. Hardly a day passes by without President Roosevelt taking a daily dip in a spacious pool. He, too, was once a sufferer of the dreaded disease.

Comes Back to School With Better Outlook

From that day on Fli Pieo improved. It wasn't long before a bicycle replaced the crutches and only a slight limp remained. But the building up of Pieo's body was even more amazing. By the time he graduated, the sturdy boy was the strong man of his class.

We leave it up to you. Is it a great Bristol story or isn't it? One boy serves to indelibly outline the entire physical education set-up of Pennsylvania high schools. Here is the aim of every coach, of every teacher, and of every leader in sport attained.

Starting with the school coach, who advised and taught the boy, the story finds the lad himself as the main character. It shows what a kid can do if he really rubs his nose a bit to the grindstone. Unfiring devotion toward a coach and patient practice paid off for Pieo.

The raw courage of this athlete sends a tinge of excitement down the most calloused sport fan's back. Some fan downtown said the story should be called from "Crutches to Coach In One Easy Lesson." But he was beaten to the ground by a score of hands. Everyone knows it amounted to a million difficult lessons.

As Pieo's body expanded, so also did his skill on the various pieces of gymnastic apparatus. He perfected every trick. Before he was out of school he had won national fame in the rope climb. By the time he graduated colleges with a gymnastic trend reached eagerly for him. He went to Stroudsburg and later transferred to Penn State. All now know of his meteoric rise to success.

Has Personality to Succeed As A Coach

We personally recall "Fli" as a classmate in that gallant troupe of rogues who went to make up our commercial section at Bristol during 1937. That was a great era in sports. Carnivals, Barouth, Gallato, the Mignonis, and several others set up a State grid scoring mark.

Fli never let a minute pass by him. All free time, aside from studies, were spent down in the gym shunning up ropes or bending over bars. His incessant workmanship, which was to later pay dividends, never slackened. Many good athletes, once they attain a peak, simmer down and rest on their laurels. This is the main fault of most of them. But the men who stick around the big show, and who later walk into the plant while their pals ring a clock, are the ones who do not ride the crest of content.

Enough of Pieo as an athlete. As a man he has been without a critic. He is likable, easy going and not big headed. His team-mates on Bristol's district championship gym teams received many valuable bits of information from him during hours of practice. The Nittany Lion grad should make a good gym coach at Maryland.

Out of the pack came many men all charging and churning on the field of battle. Out of the pack there hobbled a lame kid with crutches and a slight build. Every athlete has held coaching as a future high point. The lame boy turned out to be the champ. His is the traditional ivy-clad campus and groups of men coming in to be taught the fundamentals and finer points of the game. Fli Pieo reached his objective because he had a heart of fighting quality beneath his chest.

Budget Meal Gives All the Food Values

Less Demanded Meat Cuts Are Just As Nourishing, Appetizing

Appetizing meals that meet all dietary requirements can be provided on a limited allowance.

Luckily enough, food value is not measured by the cost of a food. This is particularly true of meat, an important part of the low-cost diet that makes it both more appetizing and nutritious.

Economy cuts of meat are as nutritious as any, Inez S. Willson, home economist, states. For all practical purposes too, the food value of meat, particularly in relation to protein, minerals and vitamins, is the same regardless of grade. The wise homemaker will therefore become acquainted with the less-demanded cuts and make her meat dollar go still further by watching the "specials" and patronizing the market which carries the grade of meat adapted to her needs.

The following meats are the cuts most economically priced:

Beef Cuts

Shank Bone, Neck, Plate, Brisket, Skirt Steak, Short Ribs, Corned Brisket, Corned Plate, Rolled Neck, Chuck Rib, Arm Pot-Roast, Blade Steak, Boston Cut, Rolled Boston Cut, Arm Steak, Triangle Pot-Roast, Knuckle Pot-Roast, Ground Chuck, Rolled Brisket, Rolled Plate, Boneless Shank Meat, Rolled Ribs, Flank Steak, Round Steak, Bottom Round, Heel of Round, Swiss Steak, Ground Round, Rump Steak, Rib Steak, Short Ribs.

Veal Cuts

Breast, Shoulder Roast, Fore Shank, Ribs, Boneless Stew, Shoulder Chops, Rib Chops, Rump Roast, Rolled Shoulder, Rolled Breast, Arm Steak, Patties, Ground for Loaf.

Fresh Pork Cuts

Link Sausage Is Good Treat At Any Meal

There are as many ways to serve sausage as there are pieces in a patchwork quilt, and there are nearly as many kinds of sausage, according to Inez S. Willson, home economist.

Link sausage is available in sizes from the midget cocktail-size to the dinner-size sausage. Country style sausage is "just one big link," that is, it comes as one large piece which you can cut into individual servings or cook as a whole.

To Panbroil Sausage Links

Cook the sausage in a covered skillet with two tablespoons water and let steam five minutes. Pour off excess water remove cover and brown slowly. When cooked this way the sausage is plump, juicy and evenly browned.

For Breakfast

The small links are excellent for breakfast or lunch with French toast and applesauce. Place two links of sausage on each piece of French toast. Cover with applesauce and sprinkle with powdered sugar and cinnamon.

WORKING DAUGHTERS USUALLY GIVE MORE TO SUPPORT OF HOME THAN THEIR BROTHERS

By Kenneth M. Scheibel

I. N. S. Staff Correspondent
WASHINGTON, June 12—(INS)—America's working daughters outstrip their wage earning brothers when it comes to supporting the family.

This is the conclusion of the Women's Bureau of the Department of Labor after a study of 6,000 women in two widely diverse localities—Cleveland, Ohio, and the state of Utah.

The single daughter living at home is also numerically the most important among women wage earners, the bureau reports.

"When unmarried sons and daughters in the same family work," the Women's Bureau reveals, "more daughters than sons give all their earnings to the family, and more daughters contribute large proportions of their salaries, though they usually earn less than sons."

In Cleveland, the bureau says, the month's earnings of daughters average $75, and their contributions to the family average $40. On the other hand, sons earn $86 and give their families $37. The corresponding averages in Utah are $77 and $27, respectively, for daughters, and $72 and $19 for sons.

Of all the families visited, four-fifths live entirely on the earnings of members, according to the bureau. The following shows the importance of women's earnings to the family treasury:

"Women's earnings constitute the entire support of well over a third of the families of two or more persons. In nearly one fifth, women contribute half or more, though not all, of the total income.

"In only three and one half per cent of the instances do women keep their earnings entirely for their own needs."

In a third of the Cleveland families and a half of the Utah families, the wife or mother is a wage earner, the bureau reports. In cases where both the husband or father and wife or mother work, the wife's contributions were found to be from a fourth to a half of the family income in 60 per cent or more of the cases studied.

A fifth of the women studied live apart from their families. Costs of living for women in Utah were found to be lower than in Ohio.

"For a wholesome life," the bureau reports, "a woman living alone needs a minimum of $84 a month in Utah, more in the city of Cleveland. About three in eight of these women send money regularly to their families, though their earnings average $96 a month in Utah, $103 in Cleveland."

The women interviewed are permanently employed, according to the bureau. It was pointed out that the study represents a cross section of women who are at work at different ages, with varying marital status, and different occupations and earning power.

Cleveland was chosen for the survey because of its industrial structure which affords women broad opportunities in commerce, manufactures, and all professions and services.

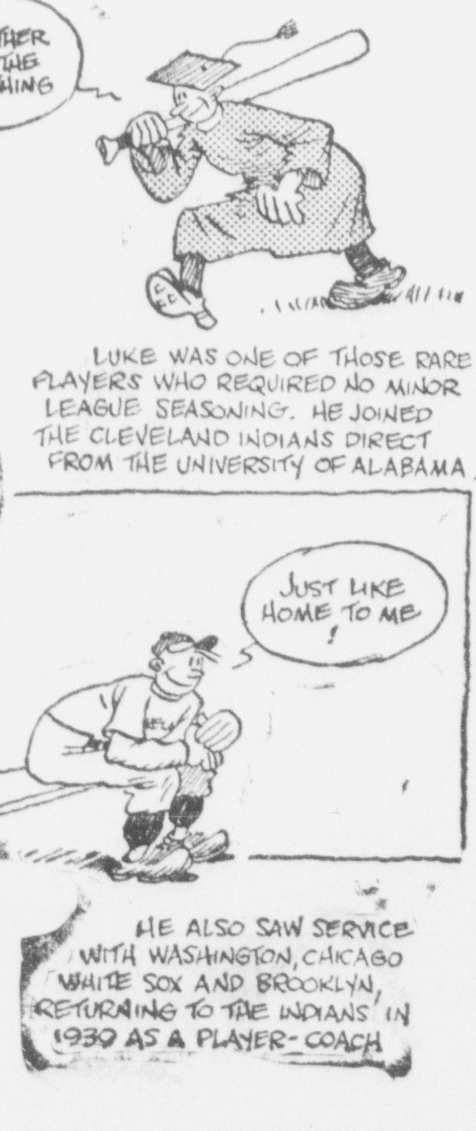

Utah's mining and agricultural economy limits women's opportunities to the professions and services found in almost every community.

FASHION PARADE

By Jane Cochran

(I. N. S. Fashion Editor)
NEW YORK—(INS)—If you're going to the races, these are the clothes you'll be wearing—

Slim, print dresses topped off by big-brimmed flattering hats.

Jacket dresses in figured material with matching print jackets or full-length coat of a plain material.

The slender, sophisticated silhouette, moulded to the figure, with tucks or shirring giving ease of movement.

Smooth shoulders, very slightly padded, and sleeves in all lengths to add variety to the wardrobe. Melon sleeves, raglan, "wing" sleeves and bishop sleeves alternate with the slim, tight-fitting types.

Big-brimmed hats that are logical and dramatic accents for the new slim silhouette. They'll be in very sheer straws, horsehair, stitched net or the time-honored straws and the predominant types are cart-wheels and off-the-face models.

"Dressier" dresses, a new style.

Style Predictions of Designers

Even if you aren't going to the races, these are the clothes you'll be wearing, as they're the style predictions of only one injured.

some of America's outstanding designers.

"Dressier" dresses for afternoon wear made their appearance first in the spring collections and are proving popular for wear on the country club porch and for all types of afternoon wear.

Hand touches are popular—cut out appliques of print design, ruching used around hems or lapels, subtle quilting effects worked on print fabrics and tiny vertical tucking. These are used by fashion creators to duplicate the "hand look" so distinguished among Parisian couturiers.

Prints this year often have a "theme" rather than just a collection of colors tossed together into a design. Racing giraffes, piping Pans, seashells, Baroque scrolls, bees and butterflies are some of the prints shown, while others pick up British and national defense emblems.

ages from his own car and fled, later stealing Cohen's car. But he forgot the film roll wedged under the back seat of his own car.

The negatives revealed a good photograph of a youth seated in a car against a background of a tall silo and a towering water tank. Searching for such large farms, Schilling and Sweeney found the agricultural estate of Edward Reilly, a General Motors executive, 11 miles from Doylestown.

Employees there readily identified Neppes as one of the farm-hands, and said he'd been in Philadelphia overnight. The arrest followed.

STRAWBERRIES ARE MORE THAN FRUIT; NUTRITIVE VALUE.

By Miss Edna Stephany
(Home Economics Representative)

The strawberry is more than just a delicious fruit. From the standpoint of nutritive value, it is an excellent source of vitamin C. Vitamin C is needed in the diet every day, because the body has no way of storing it. A medium-sized dish of raw strawberries, such as is often served for dessert, furnishes more than half of a liberal day's allowance for vitamin C.

In strawberry season, you'll get the most vitamin C from strawberries if you serve them raw, because heat destroys vitamin C. But you can also cut down on the loss of this vitamin in strawberry dishes such as tarts and pies, by cooking the berries just as little as possible.

Strawberry season can last the year round in preserves, in jams, or as canned strawberries. Here are some rules for making good preserves from them.

First of all, select the strawberries you're going to preserve carefully. See that they are firm—ripe rather than soft-ripe. See that they are of uniform size so they will cook evenly. Be sure they are of good quality. You can judge this by their solid red color, their bright, clean, fresh appearance, their fresh green caps and stems. There should be no decay or mold on the berries, no white spots that indicate immaturity, and no red stains on the berry container.

Work only with small quantities. Don't try to handle more than six or eight pounds of strawberries at once.

Prepare the strawberries carefully. Wash them before you can them or stem them. Otherwise the berries will lose some of their good juice in the cleaning water. And when you wash the berries, lift them out of the water. Most of the dirt settles to the bottom and can be poured off easily this way. Weigh, don't measure the ingredients. That is, weigh the sugar and the strawberries. Weighing is the only accurate way to work out these proportions, because the amount of strawberries in a measuring cup will vary with the size and shape of the berries. Proper proportions for preserves are a pound of berries to a pound of sugar.

Cut the cooking time down to as little as possible. One good way to reduce this is to combine the strawberries and sugar eight to 10 hours before you cook them. Usually this can be done easily the night before. Combine the berries and sugar in alternate layers. This over-night blending will make the strawberries more firm so they won't be so likely to cook to pieces. And just enough juice is drawn out of the strawberries by the sugar to make it unnecessary to add water when you cook the berries. Since you have no excess water to boil off, the cooking time is shorter.

Actual cooking time for the preserves need be only 15 to 20 minutes. Heat the strawberries to boiling. Stir them carefully all the time to keep from scorching. Boil until the sirup is somewhat thick and the berries begin to look almost transparent.

At this point the preserves are done and ready to be put into sterilized glass fruit jars. Fill the jars about three-fourths full of berries, then fill the jar to the top with sirup. Seal immediately using a sterilized jar top and rubber. Store strawberry preserves in a cool dry place.

Strawberries that are good, but are not uniform in size, less perfect in shape, or ripen than they should be for preserves are best in jam.

For strawberry jam, prepare the berries carefully as for preserves. To each pound of strawberries, use three-fourths of a pound of sugar. Crush the berries and bring them slowly to boiling. Stir them constantly, add the sugar, and boil the fruit mixture until it has thickened to about the consistency of jelly. Stir all the time. Pour into hot sterilized jars and seal. For an interesting combination of flavor, try tart rhubarb or pineapple in combination with strawberries in jam.

18-YEAR-OLD YOUTH WILL SERVE AS FLYING INSTRUCTOR WITH CANADIAN AIR FORCE

By Barney Cohen

(I. N. S. Staff Correspondent)
DENVER, June 12—(INS)—Within a few weeks, Dick James, 18-year-old Denver high school senior, who is the youngest aviator to hold a commercial pilot's license in the United States, will have realized an ambition that has been his since the outbreak of the present war.

Overcoming parental objections, Dick, who has been flying solo ever since his 16th birthday, has completed arrangements for service with the Royal Canadian Air Force as a flying instructor at one of the many Dominion air training centers.

With him will go Ralph B. Baird, Jr., former pilot-photographer with the aerial survey of the United States Department of Agriculture.

The two youths between them have 1,050 solo flying hours to their credit. They will motor to Ottawa, Canada, together and engage in about two months of practice instructing before being assigned as pilot officers to one of the new training centers, at which it is hoped to turn out 30,000 first class pilots this year.

Arrangements for induction into the Canadian flying forces were made through the Clayton Knight Committee, composed of men who flew with the United States Air Forces and the Lafayette Escadrille during the World War.

"I sure had been hoping for the chance," said Young Dick, son of Leonard James, automobile firm executive. "I tried but can't get a commission with the United States Army Air Corps for three more years, when I'm 21." The rank of officer pilot in the RCAF is equivalent to the rank of second Lieutenant in the United States Air Corps.

Young James passed the flight test for commercial pilot on April 28th, the day of his 18th birthday. Oliver C. De Bontillier, regional civil aeronautics authority inspector for the grueling session of examination was impressed by the flying ability of the youth.

Upon landing his light plane after the various maneuvers, the inspector informed Dick he had satisfactorily passed the test, and he requested that he be given the same tests for a heavier craft, in which he again demonstrated his flying ability. The result was that Dick in one afternoon received his commercial license with both a 1-S and 2-S rating, based on the weight of the planes flown.

Immediately, Dick confided that he was anxious to join the Canadian flyers, but two obstacles stood in his way—there was the problem of obtaining consent of his parents and he desired to graduate from high school on June 6th.

He cleared both hurdles a few days later, when his father consented and his high school principal agreed to give him an opportunity to complete his courses and receive his diploma early.

"I promised dad I would come back and go to Colorado University after the war," James said. "I think that won him over."

Dick started flying at the age of 13 with an instructor at his side and his father gave him a plane on his 16th birthday, when he was permitted to fly a plane by himself under regulations. The young pilot made headlines all over the country when he took his small, fast plane on a solo flight to Chicago to visit his grandmother only a few months after his birthday.

In addition to the distinction of being the youngest pilot with a commercial license, he has 520 flying hours to his credit, believed to be more than any pilot of his age in the country.

As a pilot officer in the Canadian Air Force, he will receive between $290 and $300 a month—which is pretty good for a boy of 18, just out of high school. And the Canadian Government has announced that none of the men signed as instructors will be sent to Europe.

FASHION PARADE

By Max Factor, Jr.

(Famous Hollywood Make-Up Specialist Writing For I. N. S.)

HOLLYWOOD—(INS)—Make-up is primarily and most importantly designed to enhance naturally beautiful features.

Secondarily, the powers of concealment and illusion contained in artfully applied make-up can be devoted to concealing or minimizing the appearance of appearance flaws.

This secondary fact, however, should not be construed as one which signifies that women should always depend upon make-up alone to accomplish the overcoming of imperfections in appearance.

If it is at all possible, a woman should go behind the make-up scene to actually and physically banish the flaw about which she is concerned.

Let us consider, for instance, skin which is marred by blackheads, or any comparable defect.

Make-up can conceal the presence of such a defect. But, obviously enough, it would be very foolish to go on depending upon such make-up concealment for your final perfection in appearance. The sensible thing to do is to take steps to remedy the basic skin flaw, rather than to merely go on hiding it.

There are no skin afflictions which are not traceable to definite sources. This source may lie in faulty diet; in some lack of thoroughness in skin cleansing; in a generally run-down physical condition; or any one of several other various causes.

If any such skin conditions fail to respond favorably to whatever home treatment which may have suggested itself to you, consult a skin specialist or your personal physician.

Another common error of feminine glamour practice is a too complete dependence upon make-up to conceal the visible ravages of nervousness, tiredness, or lack of sleep.

Make-up can for a long period of time conceal the facial blemishes and the dark circles about the eyes which come from such causes. But don't expect the beautifying art to perform this miracle forever. There must come a day when the visible evidences of the neglect and abuse of natural beauty become so outstanding that all the cosmetic flattery in the world must fail to conceal them.

If you are a highly nervous person, start a planned campaign which will lead in the direction of relaxation. Neither beauty nor glamour can be preserved to the greatest possible degree by a woman who is keyed up to a high nervous pitch. Nor can an exhausted woman be as intriguing as she might otherwise be.

RIPE STRAWBERRY JAM

4 cups prepared fruit
7 cups sugar
½ bottle fruit pectin

To prepare fruit, grind about 2 quarts fully ripe strawberries, or crush completely one layer at a time so that each berry is reduced to a pulp.

Measure sugar and prepared fruit into large kettle, and mix well.

Bring to a full rolling boil over hottest fire. Stir constantly before and while boiling. Boil hard 3 minutes.

Remove from fire and stir in bottled fruit pectin. Then stir and skim by turns for just 5 minutes to cool slightly, to prevent floating fruit. Pour quickly. Paraffin hot jam at once. Makes about 10 glasses (4 fluid ounces each).

VITAMINS AND WHAT THEY DO

Vitamins and what they do toward starting a baby well on the way to a healthy childhood are an important factor nowadays in the planning of an infant's diet. This is one reason why solid foods such as vegetables, fruits and cereals are strained and included in a child's meals at a much earlier age than formerly.

Babies have a supply of some of the vitamins stored in their bodies when they are born and some of them are furnished in their diets by the milk which is their first food, but soon this supply must be supplemented with the vitamins provided by vegetables, fruits and cereals.

Doctors say these five vitamins are known to be most essential to a child's diet: A, B, C, D, and G. Vitamin A helps the baby resist many different types of infection of the skin and mucous membrane as well as certain infections of the eyes. One reason cod liver oil is added to the baby's diet so early in his life is to make sure he has enough of this vitamin to prevent such infections. Other foods rich in vitamin A which doctors recommend are strained carrots, beef and liver soup and strained apricots and apple sauce. Egg yolk is another food doctors often give babies both for its high vitamin A content and for the iron it adds to their diet. Strained spinach and tomato soup are also good sources of vitamin A.

Cod liver oil also provides vitamin D in the baby's diet—so let us consider its value to the baby in connection with vitamin A. We depend on the fish oils, egg yolks and milk which is reinforced with vitamin D for the vitamin because they are such excellent sources. Its presence in the child's diet prevents rickets and helps build sound teeth and strong bones.

Vitamin B promotes good digestion and helps the child have a healthy appetite. Lack of sufficient vitamin B in the child's diet may cause him to be irritable, unwilling to eat and backward in physical growth. Whole grain cereals, wheat germ and green peas are the best sources for the baby's supply of this vitamin. Thus strained cereal and strained peas are particularly important in the child's diet to provide him with vitamin B.

Doctors make an effort to get vitamin C into the child's diet at an early age to help prevent infection, to promote the normal structure of the blood vessels and to provide healthy nourishment of the gums and teeth. Orange juice and tomato juice are important in the baby's diet for this reason, and strained tomato soup, strained pears and pineapple, strained mixed greens, spinach, asparagus and peas also provide vitamin C in the baby's diet.

Vitamin G aids in the growth of the infant and is a factor in promoting a better appetite. A baby usually gets sufficient vitamin G in his milk, but beef and liver soup, strained cereal, strained prunes and strained apricots and apple sauce also help get this vitamin into his diet.

Some of these vitamins are destroyed by too long cooking, too high temperatures or cooking while in contact with air. Therefore, a special method of preparing the strained foods which eliminates as much as possible these ways of destroying the vitamins has been devised by the Mellon Institute of Industrial Research. Thus babies who are given foods prepared in this way should be well supplied with the vitamins they need.

One can obtain 14 different kinds of the strained foods prepared by this special method. Many doctors recommend the strained cereal first, followed by strained beef and liver soup and vegetable soup. The other prepared strained foods are carrots, spinach, tomato soup, peas, prunes, apricots and apple sauce, pears and pineapple, asparagus, mixed greens, green beans and beets. The doctor should be consulted before any new food is given to the baby.

Many doctors start a baby on strained foods when he is only four months old. But babies vary in their ability to take new foods, and so some do not have strained foods until they are a few months older. The introduction to the new food should be gradual, of course—a small quantity such as a teaspoonful diluted with water or milk being given at first. The added liquid is then gradually reduced and finally dispensed with. Finally the baby takes a full 4½-oz. can of strained food at ten to twelve months.

Defenders Like These Papers, Army Men Say

Nothing makes a selective service man in camp happier than a letter from home or a home-town newspaper in the daily mail, army officials said recently after an extensive survey.

Next in order, the selective service youth likes sweets such as candy, cookies and chocolates—and chewing gum!

Officers say that on the march the gum helps keep the boys from drinking too much water and from dipping into their lunch ration.

Other offerings which bring a smile of pleasure to the enrollee include a general repertoire of utilities among which are books of stamps, flashlights, a towel now and then, toilet articles, and reading materials.

Officers say that if relatives want to be sure their addressee gets what's mailed to him, they should address the letter or package in this way: Name first, his company or battery second, his regiment third, and lastly the name of the post office.

DIAMOND TEAM GETS SEVERE JOLT FROM ODD FELLOWS

"Milt" Jones On The Mound Hurls Team To A Victory

FINAL SCORE IS 3 TO 1

Jones' Canny Thumb Out-Shoot Had Diamond Boys Baffled

The first half chances of the Diamond team received a severe jolt last evening on Leedom's field as the veteran hill moundsman, "Milt" Jones, exhibited his old-time form to pitch the Odd Fellows to a 3-1 triumph over the Diamond team.

Jones and his cunny-thumb outshoot had the Diamond boys baffled all evening. He gave up but two safe bingles, both coming in the second inning and from then on, the Diamantians could not connect with the ball to save their necks.

After the second inning, Jones permitted but three runners to reach base, two getting there on errors and the other via a pass. Singles by Hubsch and Stallone, a sacrifice by Clay and an infield out by Kelly gave the losers their only marker.

The Odd Fellows also had trouble in getting base hits. The Diamond team had Gene Ashton on the hill and he gave up five safe bingles. But these five hits were timely enough to account for three runs. Praul drove in a run with a single in the second while Bliger's double accounted for the second run in the third. Watson's hit in the fifth scored Bliger with the third run for the Oddies.

It was the fourth defeat of the season Diamond team who have but two games remaining to be played this half.

ROHM & HAAS NINE NOSES OUT AUTO BOYS

In a game that was loaded with arguments from start to finish, the Rohm and Haas team nosed out the Auto Boys 9-0.

SOX SOCKER By Jack Sords

TED IS FAR AHEAD OF THE OTHER AMERICAN LEAGUE HITTERS, AVERAGING WELL OVER .400

Boys, 6-5, last evening on the Maple Beach field. The victory put the chemical workers in second place in the Suburban League standing.

Although the arguments were hot and heavy all during the tilt, only one player was banished from the game. Catcher "Jock" McCue was tossed out after he and Umpire Miller came to exchanging blows. Umpire Miller also threatened to throw out several other players.

The verbal fights made the game all the more interesting as the boys were fighting for every inch they could get. The contest wasn't decided until the last half of the seventh when Joe Roe opened with a long double to center and came home on a line single to left by Wally Oppman.

Previous to this ending, the Auto Boys had put forth a rally that netted them a pair of runs and a deadlocked score. Klein opened by getting two bases on an error by Holland. Kratz battled for Strickler and hit a two-bagger to center, scoring Klein. Bauroth singled to left and Kratz counted. Heftman bunted down the third base line and beat out the ball.

Umpire Miller called the ball foul but the Auto Boys players rushed him and there was an exchange of blows with it ending up by Miller benching McCue. Heftman batted over and sacrificed Bauroth to second. Bragg fled out. McCue attempted to bat but was ordered off the field. Bauroth went to third on a passed ball. Morgan batted for McCue and drew a pass. Harry Bauroth grounded out.

ALL-LOCAL LINEUP BEING BOOKED FOR ST. ANN'S ARENA

Matchmaker Roccagno Says Local Boys Will Feature The Card

GOOD BOUTS PLANNED

Well Pleased With Crowd At The Initial Boxing Show

Matchmaker Johnny Roccagno announced last night that he will have practically an all-local lineup of fighters to meet opponents from the city at the next amateur boxing show to be conducted by the St. Ann's A. A. in its arena, Franklin and Wood streets. The bouts will be held next Monday night.

Roccagno was well-pleased with the turnout of last Monday night's fans and predicted that this week will see all of the seats in the spacious outdoor palace of give-and-take.

Roccagno expects to book fights for Joe Tardino, Al Conrad, Bill McColl, Al Turner, Dick Maher, Carmine Orrino, Joe Petrino, James McCleary, and several other boys who are in training.

Tickets for reserve seats are expected to be sold over the week-end at the St. Ann's club-house.

HOME CANNING TAKES ON IMPORTANCE WITH ALL OUT FOR DEFENSE

By Miss Edna Stephany (Home Economics Representative)
This year—with all America defense minded—both home and commercial canning are taking on new importance. To help stock the Nation's pantry for emergency needs, commercial canneries are planning to increase their output of certain nourishing canned vegetables.

"What makes good sense for the Nation's pantry often makes good sense for the family pantry also," says Dr. Louise Stanley, chief of the Department of Agriculture's Bureau of Home Economics.

With a home canning program dovetailed into a carefully planned home-production program, many families can assure themselves of a year round diet that is better balanced and more varied than one they could afford to buy entirely at the store. And when food prices rise, the woman with plenty of canned food in the pantry can count herself doubly provident.

Home canning, of course, is most economical on farms on in towns where families have the land to grow their own garden stuff. Usually it is only when fresh fruits and vegetables are available cheap from nearby that it is economical for city families to buy food to can.

Sugar, an important material for fruit canners, is an item that some homemakers have been wondering about. However, according to the Sugar Division of the U. S. Department of Agriculture, there are ample reserves of sugar either here in the United States or on nearby islands for all needs.

If you live on a farm, your canning budget will influence your garden plans. In making a budget, figure how much food the family needs for a year. And take into consideration how long fresh foods are out of season.

You should serve at least one canned vegetable every day, a green vegetable twice a week and tomatoes three times a week. This means that you will need to can 7½ quarts of greens, 15 quarts of tomatoes and 7½ quarts of other vegetables for every member of your family for the seven months period when fresh vegetables are not available.

You may obtain Bulletin 153, "Home Canning of Fruits and Vegetables," at the Agricultural Extension Office in Doylestown.
